Rough's Death and Burial.

By this time Grif had reached the staircase which led into the cellar. Crouching upon the floor, he listened with his ear to the ground.

"I can hear him," he said in a pleasant voice, "he's a beatin' his tail on the ground, but he won't move till I call him. I don't believe there's another dawg in Melbourne to come up to him. Jist listen to him! He's a thinkin' to himself, how much longer will he be, I wonder, before he calls me! And he knows I'm a-talkin of him; he knows it as well as I do myself.

He listened again, and laughed quietly.

"If I was to mention that dawg's name," Grif said, in a confidential tone, as if he was addressing a companion "he'd be here in a minute. He would! It's wonderful how he knows! I've had him since he was a pup, and afore he could open his eyes. It would be nice sleepin' down in the cellar, but we can't do it, can we, old fellar? We've got somebody else to look after, haven't we? You, and me, and him, an't had a bit of supper, I'll bet. But we'll get somethin' to eat, somehow you sse if we don't."

Here the lad whistled softly, and the next instant a singularly ugly dog was by his side, licking his face, and expressing satisfaction in a quiet but demonstrative manner.

"An't you jolly warm, Rough!" whispered Grif, taking the dog in his arms, and gathering warmth from it. "Good old Rough! Dear old Rough!"

The dog could only respond to its master's affection by action, but that was sufficiently expressive for Grif, who buried his face in Rough's neck, and patted his back, and showed in twenty little ways that he understood and appreciated the faithfulness of his dumb servant. After this interchange of affectionate sentiment, Grif and his dog crept out of the house. It was raining hard, but the lad took no further heed of the weather than was expressed by dropping his chin upon his breast, and putting his hands into the ragged pockets of his still more ragged trousers. Slouching along the walls as if he derived some comfort from the contact, Grif walked into a wider street of the city, and stopped at the entrance of a narrow passage leading to a room used as a casino. The dog, which had been anxiously snifting the gutters in quest of such stray morsels of food as had escaped the eyes and noses of other ravenous dogs, stopped also, and looked up humbly at its master.

"I'll stay here," said Grif, resting against the wall. "Milly's in there, I dare say, and she'll give me somethin' when she comes out, if she's got it."

Understanding by his master's action that no further movement was to be made for the present Rough sat upon his haunches in perfect contentment, and contemplated the raindrops falling on the ground. Grif was hungry, but he had a stronger motive than that for waiting; as he had said he had some one besides himself to provide for, and the girl he expected to see had often given him money. Strains of music floated down the passage, and the effect of the sounds combined with his tired condition, sent him into a half-doze. He started now and then, as persons passed and re-passed him; but presently he slid to the earth, and, throwing his arm over the dog's neck, fell into a sound sleep. He slept for nearly an hour, when a hand laid upon his shoulder roused him.

"What are you sleeping in the rain for?" a girl's voice asked.

"Is that you, Milly?" asked Grif, starting to his feet and shaking himself awake. "I was waitin' for you, and I was so tired that I fell off. Rough didn't bark at you, did he, when you touched me?"

"Not he. He's too sensible," replied Milly, stooping and caressing the dog, who licked her hand. "He knows friends from enemies. A good job if all of us did. Have you had anything to eat to-night, Grif? Well, here's a shilling for you—it's the only one I've got—and you're welcome to it." And, forcing the shilling into his hand, the girl walked quickly away.

Grif looked after her until she was out of sight, and, shaking his head as if he had a problem in it which he could not solve, made straight for a coffee stall where pies are sold, and invested his shilling. Carrying his investment in his cap, which he closed like a bag, so that the rain should not get to the pies, Grif, with Rough at his heels, dived into the poorer part of the city and threaded his way through a very labyrinth of deformed streets. The rain poured steadily down upon him, and soaked him through and through, but his utter disregard of the discomfort of his situation showed how thoroughly he was used to it. Grif was wending his way to bed, and unless any misconception should arise on this point, it may be as well to mention at once that the bed was a barrel which lay in the rear of a shabby house. Not long since the barrel had been tenanted by a dog, whose master had lived in the shabby house. But, happily, master and dog had shifted quarters, and the barrel becoming tenantless, Grif took possession without inquiring for the landlord. Whereby he clearly laid himself open to an action of ejectment. And Grif was not the only tenant, for when he arrived at his sleeping place he stooped, and putting his head into the barrel, withdrew it again, and said: "Yes, there he is!" the utterance of which common-place remark appeared to afford him much satisfaction.—Grif's action had disturbed the occupant of the barrel, who had evidently been sleeping, and he presently appeared, rubbing his eyes.

Such a strange little tenant! Such a white-faced, thin-faced, haggard-faced, little tenant! Such a large-eyed, wistful-eyed, little tenant! In truth, a small boy, a very baby-boy, who might have been an infant, and who might have been an old man, whom hunger had pinched, whom misery had shaken hands and made familiar with. He gazed at Grif with his large eyes and smiled sleepily, and then catching sight of Grif's cap with the pies in it, rubbed his hands gladly, and was wide awake in an instant.

"You haven't had nothin' to eat to-night, I'll bet," said Grif.

The little fellow's lips formed themselves into a half whispered no.

Grif insinuated his body into the barrel, and stretched himself full length by the side of the baby-boy. Then he slightly raised himself, and resting his chin on his hand, took a pie from his cap, and gave it to his companion.—The boy seized it eagerly, and bit into it, without uttering a word.

"You haven't got me to thank for it, Little Peter," Grif said. "It's Milly you've got to thank. Say, thank you, Milly."

"Thank you Milly," said Little Peter, obediently, devouring his pie.

There was another pie in the cap, but hungry as Grif was he did not touch it. He looked a Little Peter munching, and then at his dog, who had crept to the mouth of the barrel, and who was eyeing the pie wistfully. Had the dog known that its master was hungry, it would not have looked at the pie as if it wanted it.

"You've had precious little to eat to-night, too," said Grif to Rough, who wagged his tail as his master spoke. "We'll have it between us." And he broke the pie in two pieces.

He was about to give one piece of it to Rough, when he heard a cat-like step within a few yards of him. "Who's there?" he cried, creeping partly out of the barrel. No answer came, but the dog gave a savage growl, and darted forwards. Grif listened, but heard nothing but a faint laugh.

"I know that laugh," said Grif; "that's the Tenderhearted Oysterman's laugh. What can he want here? Rough! Rough!" he called, remarking that the dog was not by his side.

Rough came back at the call. The dog had a piece of meat in his mouth, which it was swallowing ravenously.

"Well, if this isn't a puzzler, I don't know what is," observed Grif. "Where did you get that from? You're in luck's way to-night, you are, Rough. All the better for Little Peter! Here, Little Peter, here's some more pie for you."

Little Peter took the dog's share of the pie without compunction, and expeditiously disposed of it. He then stretched himself on his face and was soon fast asleep again. Grif, having eaten his half the pie, coiled himself up, and prepared for sleep. No fear of rheumatism assailed him; it was no new thing for him to sleep in wet clothes. He was thankful enough for the shelter, poor as it was, and did not repine because he did not have a more comfortable bed. He was very tired, but the remembrance of the events of the day kept him dozing for a little while. Alice, and her husband and Milly presented themselves to his imagination in all sorts of confused ways. Gradually, however, these fancies became indistinct, and sleep fell upon him; but only to deepen them, to render them more powerful. They were no longer fancies, they were realities. He was crouching in a corner of the room, while Richard was speaking to Alice, he was groping down the stairs, and calling for Rough and fondling him; he was standing at the entrance of the narrow passage, waiting for Milly, and was sleeping with his arms embracing his dog; he was talking to Milly, and asking Rough who was the worst of Jim Pizey's lot? he was listening to the Tenderhearted Oysterman's retreating footsteps; and he was standing at the pie-stall, spending Milly's last shilling. But here a new feature introduced itself into the running commentary of his dreams. He fancied that, after he and little Peter had eaten the pies, the Tenderhearted Oysterman came suddenly behind Rough, and, seizing the dog by the throat, thrust it into a small box, the lid of which he clapped down and fastened; that then the Oysterman forced the box into the barrel, and so fixed it upon Grif's chest that the lad could not move; and that although he heard the dog moan and scratch, he could not release it. The weight upon Grif's chest grew heavier and heavier; it was forcing the breath out of his body. In his sleep he gasped and fought to release himself, and after a violent struggle he awoke.

Sewing Machines.
The hurly-burly of the Sewing-Machine war is ended. Various manufacturers have paraded their machines before the public, with a great flourish of trumpets and waving of banners. In their eagerness to effect sales, the different agents resorted to all sorts of trickery to trap the unwary, and hundreds of farmers' wives, and farmers themselves, in this county, had forced upon them worthless machines in an unguarded moment. You, who have not yet made up your minds which to buy of the many machines offered, we advise to carefully examine into the merits of the "Domestic." Independent of its many good qualities, (and we believe it to be the best in the world) it is in the hands of a gentleman here, well known to thousands of our readers, who would not knowingly make false representations.—We feel justified in saying that we believe A. Goodrich fully satisfied himself, before taking the agency of the "Domestic," that it was perfect in all its parts, and that he could unhesitatingly recommend it to all.

THE DAILY FREEMAN.

CITY OF KINGSTON, (RONDOUT.)

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 30, 1872.

The Old Abolitionists.

The old abolitionists are mainly against Greeley. Gerrit Smith, who went on Jeff's bail-bond with Greeley, is dead against him. Wendell Phillips, who has thundered his phillipics against Grant without stint, goes back on Horace. Lloyd Garrison is equally determined on the same line. Now Mr. Greeley was equally an opponent of slavery with these; why don't they sympathize with him?

Simply because they are and always have been Impracticables.—Anti-slavery would be to-day in exactly the same position it was in twenty years ago had none but the Smiths, Philipses and Garrisons advocated it. They wouldn't vote because that would acknowledge the authority of the constitution, which they considered a league with hell.—But the Horace Greeleys pounded away, and when they couldn't get just what they wanted took the next, and finally the victory was gained. And now the future of the black race is what troubles them. And here the practical Horace Greeley is the better judge.

The strong argument against slavery, outside of its inherent wrong, was its danger to the nation occasioned by the class distinctions growing out of it. Our argument as abolitionists and anti-slavery men was that the keeping of one class separate and distinct just because they were black, was unjust and also dangerous. Now that the negroes are free, Phillips and the rest insist that they shall be kept as a class, and be specially guarded and provided for. The consequence is a "negro" vote, as distingaished from a white vote. In this way they justify much of the opposition they formerly received, for the most potent charge made against them was that they designed doing just that, and it was for special privileges for these black men that they fought and not mere equality.

The anti-slavery followers of Greeley insist that the doctrine of anti-caste is just as strong against a negro vote as against a white vote; that it rests upon its justice, not upon its application. They see that permanent safety to the republic lies in preventing the demand for rights for the black race going so far as to necessitate and justify a similar demand from the white race. Horace Greeley sees, what they fail to see, that America can never feel absolutely secure, and there never can be that real peace born of love, until there is no body of citizens but can be reached as individuals, and are not hemmed in by class distinctions. So long as there is a race or class whose members all vote the way their leader vote, so long will there be danger, and the class furnishing the elements of danger will invite attacks and hostility.

The New York Times and Truth.

The N. Y. Times devotes its time to berating Greeley Republicans, going so far in lying as to say that one of the attaches of the FREEMAN has been turned out of office and been an office-seeker, but it carefully avoids a discussion of the principles involved in the canvass.

In the state of Pennsylvania Senator Cameron whom Lincoln turned out of the Cabinet for incompetency and speculation, controls the Republican party. He, in company with Kemble, the noted "Addition, division and silence" man, and Hartranft, the Grant candidate for Governor, have plundered the state for years.—J. W. Forney, of the Press, the ablest of administration men, is denouncing them for their flagrant wrongs, but the Times coolly passes it by.

The carpet-baggers issued $26,000,000 in North Carolina bonds and sold them (mostly to Northern men) under the plea that they were going to build railroads and school-houses with the proceeds. Instead of doing this they have pocketed the money, leaving nothing as a recompense to the people. This it is careful not to say much about, but urges the re-election of the thieves.

At home it supports Murphy and Marshal Sharpe, who are making an alliance with James O'Brien to gain the votes of his followers, notoriously the worst elements in New York politics. Theo. Allen has been the left bower of the Marshal, when it is well known he is one of the most brutish of men.

The Reason.

Beecher affects an incomprehensible surprise at the position taken by the Democratic party. He don't see how the people of the South can accept Greeley when for thirty years many of them would have done him personal injury, while all execrated him as the soul of the movement which took from them their slaves.—The distinguished divine should awake to the fact that, however persistently and fiercely Greeley fought for a principle, the Democratic party always considered him a manly, frank, honest foe. They disliked his principles, not the man.

Furthermore, Democrats thought and now think the good of the country calls for the overthrow of Grant. They know this cannot be done without the aid of Republicans, and that it is just as much their duty to vote a Republican as it is for the latter to ballot for the former. They know too, while doing this they have a man who is faithful to his convictions, and magnanimous to the fallen, honest in his faith, and fearless in its defense. With him there will be no truckling to England or any one else.

Then there is another motive equally as great as either. The masses are willing to do any fair thing to beat Grant, because his administration has been seditious at home and disgraceful abroad. This moves the Democrats to overcome prejudice and unite for principle. It is a most sublime testimony of devotion to country.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The Saratoga Sun says Sanford E. Church is not a candidate for Governor.

President Grant's son thinks it is too early to put colored cadets in West Point.

The Pennsylvania State Committee has decided that it will not do to withdraw Hartranft.

The campaign will be the most classical one on record. The people will put Caesar on the shelf, and take up Horace.

Speaker Blaine is getting mad. He thinks the people who talk about Grant's gift-taking orght to be tarred and feathered.

Senator Stevenson thinks it is not worth while to worry about the Baltimore Convention, as the Democratic masses have ratified its action.

A Greeley and Brown Club composed of colored men has been formed at Indianapolis. They say they rally to the support of "their life-long and staunchest friend," Horace Greeley.

The Grant papers are becoming indignant because the Governor of Missouri is running around the country. If this argument is pressed it may tend to shorten Grant's stay at Long Branch.

Frank Hiscock of Syracuse, one of the most active Republicans in that section, a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1867, is bitterly denounced by the Grant organ at Syracuse for his activity in behalf of Greeley and Brown.

One hundred leading Republicans of Northampton, Mass., have signed a call for a meeting to form a Greeley Club at the Town Hall on next Saturday. Among the signers are General Benjamin E. Cook, Rev. Josiah Clark, ex-Congressman Charles Delano, Dr. E. Denison, Webster Herrick, N. B. Huzzy, Emory B. Wells, &c.

The Sun advances the idea that Livingstone is crazy. It judges so from his letters.

Napoleon's son made a little speech on the 13th, in distributing the prizes at the House for Little Boys in London.

The inhabitants of Texas offer $500 in gold for any Indian, dead or alive. The "peace policy" is played out in Texas.

Gen. Buell's war-horse, recently deceased, was buried with—it is said—a ceremonial, including an oration, at Paradise, Ky.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

Small boats with a man in each are towed behind excursions to prevent cases of drowning. A good idea.

A Gothamite writes from Europe to the New York World that the Danube is "neither beautiful nor blue."

Mrs. Agnes Bullock, a Virginia matron, has just finished cutting an entire new set of teeth at the age of ninety-six.

The Midnight Mission Society in Vienna claims to have reformed last year three hundred and four fallen women.

Stanley, the Herald's correspondent, was called a "consummate fabricator of sensations" in Omaha five years ago.

The Carruthers suit, involving title to a large portion of Portland, Oregon, has been decided in favor of the plaintiffs.

A Saratoga belle has hair that reaches nearly to the ground. This flower of fashion might therefore be appropriately called a hare-bell.

Madame Dejazet, the antiquated dancseuse, who has lately passed her three score and ten, draws crowded houses at Marseilles, France.

A San Francisco husband refused to buy a carriage for his wife, and the lady is trying to swear him into an insane asylum in consequence.

The two prettiest girls in the town of Fall River, R. I., are chronicled as reeling about the streets one day last week in a very "incoherent condition."

It is considered a curious fact that while sunstroke has occurred almost everywhere else this summer, no case has as yet been reported from a base ball field.

The belles of Plymouth, Massachusetts, are said to have adopted summer costumes made entirely of paper; but unless the wearer has some size they're awkward things in a shower.

It cost the workingmen of Berlin, last year, $1,750,000 for the fun of their little strike. Well enough to note down the figures before commencing again in such a peasantry of opposition to the employers.

A little boy, after watching the burning of the school-house till the novelty of the thing had ceased, started down the street, saying, "I'm glad the old thing burned down; I didn't have my jogfry lesson, no how!"

A down-East shop keeper advertises "quart bowls of all sizes for sale cheap." We suppose there are different bowls for the various kinds of liquor sold in that town—or isn't it in a prohibitory-law neighborhood?

While a gentleman of Syracuse was lying on a sofa at his residence the other day, his daughter playfully snapped a cherry pit at him. It lodged in his ear and made a job for several surgeons, who experienced much difficulty in extracting it. The feat was accomplished by boring a hole in the pit with a small drill and then inserting a hooked wire in the cavity.

The New York Examiner has an article which, in view of the fact that "while people find it perfectly safe and prudent to go about their ordinary business in all sorts of weather, 'rain or shine,' a rainy Sunday will keep them as closely shut up at home," inquires, "Why is it that a Sunday rain-storm is so much more dreadful to encounter than a 'secular one?'"

An amorous Detroiter tried to kiss an unwilling fair one last week, but she became angry and bit his cheek. He attempted to return the compliment, but the pain of the bite was so intense that he fainted, and the wound has since so festered and swollen that the surgeon has decided to burn the flesh with caustic and treat it as he would the bite of a mad dog. Both the biter and the bitten belong to the first families in the city.

BARNARD IMPEACHMENT TRIAL.

SARATOGA, July 29.

B. C. Thayer testified in regard to the proceedings on the motion to lease the Olympic theatre property which had been placed in the hands of a receiver. Counsel proposed to put in evidence the papers in the case, but 'twas found that manager Prince, chairman of the Judiciary Committee in the Assembly, testified that bushels of papers were presented to the committee at their sittings in New York, and he had endeavored to have them all returned. He had supposed the papers in this case were returned, until he heard otherwise. He did not know what had become of them.

Parsons claimed he had a right now to introduce the papers, as he had shown that the originals could not be produced.

Beach objected, but the court overruled the objection.

John A. Duff testified to what he knew about the lease of the Olympic theatre property.

Martin L. Townsend testified: "Acted as counsel in the case of Steinhart vs. Funk before Judge Barnard in the chambers. Presented papers asking injunction against seizing fixtures, &c., of Irving Hall. When I had stated part of the case, Judge Barnard interrupted me, saying he would not grant the injunction. He said if any one came to take possession of my property, to kick him out. I told him my client was timid, and he said, then call in the police. I urged it was a proper case, and stated facts, but he declined to issue the injunction. I waited a while and then again applied, but he only told me to kick any one out who came. I then went out and delivered the papers to Steinhart. Next morning on arriving at the office I found the papers with the injunction granted."

Cross-examined by Beach—Judge Barnard did not read the papers when I presented them.

THE WILLIAMSPORT RIOT.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., July 29.

Troops are still in the city but there has been no further violence by the strikers.

A hearing was had to-day before Judge Gamble on a writ of habeas corpus issued for Grievy, Birmingham, Whilton and Blake, who are in jail charged with rioting and inciting the riot. A number of witnesses were heard for the purpose of fixing the amount of bail.

SUMNER'S VIEWS FORTHCOMING.

WASHINGTON, July 29.

A letter received some time ago by Senator Sumner signed by 30 respectable colored citizens of Washington, asking his opinion on the issue between Grant and Greeley, especially with reference to their antecedents and present position, has remained unanswered till now. It is understood the Senator's answer will be given to the press to-morrow. In it he reviews at length the claims of the two candidates, but it is not known upon which he decides. GENERAL NEWS.

A Southern editor promises, with his wife's assistance, to name a baby each year after the person who shall furnish the largest club list of subscribers to his paper.

When the thermometer was 100 degrees in this region, they were complaining of cold at Virginia City, Nevada, with the thermometer at 58 degrees at noon, and fires were kindled in the evening to secure warmth.

Walnut stumps have become an article of merchandise, and many of them are very valuable. The curly grain of the roots is used for veneering, and some stumps are worth $150, after being properly worked into shape.

A prominent State clergyman went over into Onondaga County a few days since to dedicate a Church. He found it to be $2,700 in debt, and made it a condition that they should pay up, or he would'nt dedicate. They did not settle the little bill, and he didn't dedicate.

A wide-awake "Cape Codist" handed a letter to the postmaster to ascertain the weight of it. Being told that it was a trifle over half an ounce, he was observed to take out his penknife and whittle the corners to its just weight, thereby saving three cents.

A jury in a recent case failed to agree upon a verdict, and urged as a reason that during the time they were locked up they were fed upon cold meats and mince pies, and that it was impossible to come to an agreement when their diet disagreed with them.

A down East editor says his experience in journalism teaches him that there is nothing in this world that will so disgust and sicken the general reader as to learn, after wading through the particulars of an awful accident, that there is a prospect of the victim's recovery.

An eccentric, not to say insane, gentleman of wealth in Columbus O., recently provided in his will for a cat infirmary, with rat-holes and rats for sport, areas for "amatory converse," and exercise grounds, with several sheds on which the fierce grimalkins may wage war at will. The establishment is largely endowed.

The enlargement of the Harmony Mill nearest the river, in Cohoes, which is now going on, will double its number of spindles. It is computed that the enlarged mill will be able to turn out about 57,950,000 yards of cloth in a year of about 230 working days of ten hours. This is at the rate of about seven yards per second.

At the grave of a wealthy and distinguished citizen of Vienna recently, two ladies, each claiming to be the widow of the deceased, met by accident, each having come to decorate the tomb with flowers and other emblems of affectionate remembrance. The result was that the police were obliged to interfere to keep the peace.

Boston has a mending and repairing society composed of women who undertake to sew on buttons, darn stockings, and perform other kindly services for unprovided bachelors.—This is benevolence indeed; but there is trouble ahead, for the society is made up mostly of married women whose husbands are positively buttonless.

A New York correspondent says that Dr. Holland will temporarily surrender the editorship of Scribner's Monthly the coming autumn and go abroad again; his journey being prompted by the desire to consult the leading oculists of Europe in respect to his wife, who, from serious opthalmic trouble, has become nearly blind.

There is a wheat field on the west side of the San Joaquin river, California, thirty-five miles in length by eight in breadth, with an area of 179,000 acres. Estimating the average yield at sixteen bushels to the acre, it would give a total yield of 2,864,200 bushels, or 86,015 tons. This amount of grain would load 8,601 cars, which, if made in one train, would reach for over eighty miles.

The building committee of a church called upon a wealthy member of the congregation, soliciting a subscription toward a new house of worship. The sum he subscribed disappointed them, and they told him so, at the same time intimating that Mr. J——had given double the amount. "So he should," said the wily gentleman, "he goes to church twice as much as I do."

A number of mail trains, to carry no passengers, and to make the trip in twenty-four hours between Chicago and New York, are to be put on the connecting roads between here and the West. As the rate of speed will be forty miles an hour, cannot some of the railroad people send us just one ticket for a ride on the engine? Our lazy correspondent needs stirring up, and he says he'll take the ride.

During the great fire in Chicago a woman badly burned, was conveyed to the police station, and that building becoming endangered an officer ran into the street, took possession of an express wagon standing there and rescued the woman. Now the proprietor of the vehicle comes forward and claims that by reason of the officer's act his own goods were burned, and claims that the city shall indemnify him for his losses. The claim was not allowed.

Mr. Bennett was true to the genius of his religion at the last, and his dying gift was $250,000 toward the completion of the Catholic cathedral in New York. It will be a splendid edifice when completed, an ornament to the city, a marble poem, indeed a whole liturgy in pure white stone; and though we do not believe much in the ecclesiastical substitute for religion, we doubt whether anybody can look upon a grand church without feeling uplifted by its suggestions and being bettered by its appeal to what is best in his mind.

They get up and carry out cool things in Maine, semi-occasionally, even in the hot weather. A party indulged in a glorious snow-picnic on the 4th. There is an immense snow drift in the Northern part of the State, originally over seventy-five feet high. So away they went, by railroad, dug three "gopher holes" in the drift, and indulged in a high old time at the most approved snow-drift temperature, with an indignant thermometer persistently marking one hundred degrees, just outside their "camp ground."

Among the inventions shown in the international exhibition in London is an ordinary sewing machine from France, the peculiarity of which is that it is driven by a clock work arrangement, which is wound up in the usual way. Fixed on the apparatus, which is inclosed in a case beneath the machine itself, is a set of vanes which can be adjusted at any angle, so that the machine is regulated by the greater or lesser resistance which they offer to the air. They form, in fact, the governor of the machine. They are represented to be expensive.

Ho For Albany!

The Rondout Baptist Sunday School and their friends, expect to have a grand time on Wednesday. Why should'nt they, on such a splendid steamer as the Cornell with Edmonds aboard to keep the crowd cool with Golden Star Ice Cream and refreshments?

Run Away.

The Trimble Opera House Company forcibly entered Music Hall Monday morning. They broke open two doors, and have thereby rendered themselves liable to the Managers in an action which will no doubt be commenced against them. The men left town hurriedly on Monday.

An Odd Benefit.

The Wiltwyck Hose Company came out short about $30 from the benefit given by The Trimble Opera House Company, and George Hogan didn't get a cent. The Opera Company claimed they did not receive more than their expenses, about $148, whereas the Hose Company say there was at least a $250 house.

Saved from Drowning.

On Saturday, a lad of about fourteen named George T. Munson, who is visiting at Mr. Edwin Sherer's in this city, while sitting on the string piece of the wharf near the stern of the James W. Baldwin slipped overboard, and being unable to swim he sank twice, after struggling frantically to save himself. There were some other boys with him whose cries attracted the attention of Alvin Tremper, one of the officers of the Baldwin, who, at the time, was sitting in the state-room hall. Rushing on deck Tremper saw the boy struggling in the water and he ran ashore, and telling the boys on the dock to hang on to his leg he laid down on the dock, and reaching out grabbed the drowning youngster by the hair as he went under for the third time, and drawing him to the wharf succeeded in bringing him safe to land, though in a limp and exhausted state. The boy had a very narrow escape, and his friends are very grateful to "Al" for his timely assistance.

Trial Trip.

The screw steamer Coe F. Young, constructed for Cornell's line during the past winter at the yard of Morgan Everson, at Sleightburgh, made her trial trip from the iron works of Starbuck & Brother to Coeymans on Monday. The above named firm constructed the engine and boiler of the boat, and have the contract for doing the same for the Thomas Dickson, a sister vessel, also built at Mr. Everson's yard. The joiner work on the Young was executed by Mr. W. H. Kerr, who for six years past has been in the employ of Mr. Cornell, and is said by experts to have been done in a truly workmanlike manner. Chauncey Houghtaling did the decorating with brush and paint, making the boat "a thing of beauty." Men who have had a long experience among all kinds of river craft pronounce the Coe F. Young the finest boat of her class on the Hudson, and she will probably "wear the star" until the Thomas Dickson comes out, when it will have to be split in two and each steamer show a half. The Young is expected to arrive in this city to-day; when, we hear it whispered, a favored few will be invited to witness her performance during a short trial trip from here.

Embezzlement.

For some time past there has been in the employ of Mr. James Pyle, the "O. K. soap" manufacturer, a young man by the name of Augustus Willis. Willis was collector and confidential clerk to Mr. Pyle, who seemed to take a deep interest in him and paid him a most liberal salary. A few days ago the employer discovered to his utter astonishment that the young man had wantonly betrayed his confidence, in that he had embezzled money to the amount of between two and three thousand dollars. He was arrested a few days since by Detective Fields, of the Fifth precinct, and yesterday was arraigned before Alderman Coman, of the Tombs Police Court, where he frankly admitted his guilt. The case will be tried in the Court of General Sessions during the present term.

We copy the above from the New York Herald of Saturday. The young man alluded was born and brought up in Kingston, and was a bright and shining light among the sports of the city. His performance in the line of drinking high-priced wines, flourishing diamonds, wearing good clothes and traveling with fast women were carried on in princely style, and the youth seemed to be literally made of money. The source of his income is now revealed, and his fate should serve as a warning to other youth, foolishly desirous of running the same reckless race of dissipation, debauchery and sensual indulgence.

Among the Mountains.

The summer boarding places among the mountains of Olive and Shandaken were never so well patronized as they have been and are this summer. The trains on the N. Y., K. & S. Railroad are nearly all heavily laden with passengers going to or returning from some of these cool, pleasant places among the everlasting hills. During a trip to Boiceville on Saturday evening we had this fact very plainly demonstrated to us, for all along the road, wherever there were accommodations of any sort, a party would land and proceed to find lodgings. The Overlook Mountain House received a good share of patronage, and above West Hurley Winne's hotel, near Boiceville, and Margaretsville seemed to be the recipients of the larger portion of the travelers.

We were especially struck with one thing; that being the large number going from our city to spend a quiet Sabbath at some of these cool resorts in the mountains. By taking the train which leaves Rondout station at 6 p. m., one can reach any point on the road in season for a good supper (and what an appetite this mountain air gives!) and have considerable leisure before retiring to sleep. Then the Sunday afternoon train furnishes transportation home again, reaching the terminus at 5:30. Thus a person can enjoy a pleasant Sabbath among the grand old hills, drinking in great draughts of bracing air and witnessing scenery of magnificence and beauty, and return home refreshed and invigorated by the trip, without having broken in upon or interfered with his regular week's work.

Margaretville seems to be the favorite resort for Rondout people, for a large number are now spending pleasant vacations there. Many board at private dwellings, while many more are domiciled at the Ackerly House, of which all are loud and enthusiastic in praise as a model hostelry. Winne's, near Boiceville, is crowded with guests, and the jolly landlord has his hands and head full in returning gently negative answers to scores of applicants, whose letters have accumulated in a "whole heap," every one expressing the earnest desire of the writer for accommodations at this favorite hotel, located as it is amid surroundings of nature's most attractive and magnificent variety. It is situated in a deep vale or gorge, the mountains rising high on either side, and down through this gorge at almost any hour of the day sweeps a cool, delicious mountain breeze. The jolly landlord keeps it lively about his house, and seems to be "all over at once," so ubiquitous is he in caring for the pleasure and comfort of his guests. The hotel will accommodate about fifty boarders, and every room is full; indeed, on Saturday night several visitors who arrived by the afternoon train had to be billeted elsewhere, and found a most pleasant haven in the hospitable home of Mr. Davis Winne.

The trout streams of this section are justly celebrated, and just now scores of knights of the rod and fly are perambulating the hills in search of the speckled beauties that lurk in the cool waters of these mountain streams. Certainly old Ulster can boast of as great attractions as can be found short of the Adirondacks in the shape of mountain scenery and mountain fishing and hunting, and the railroad is opening up this region for easy access to hundreds who are fast learning to appreciate its attractions.

Attempt at Rape.

On Sunday afternoon about 6 o'clock a diabolic attempt at rape on a little girl of about thirteen, a daughter of Henry McShane residing at East Kingston, was made by James Pritched, a man of over forty years of age and foreman in Terry's brick yard at Steep Rocks. The girl McShane had been to Rondout, and was on her way home. When near Mr. Terry's house the man Pritched was only a short distance behind her on the opposite side of the road, and they continued in those relative positions past the houses in Steep Rocks. Going up the hill north of Steep Rocks the girl overtook two others younger than herself, one a daughter of Martin Staiger and the other of John Stroke, and in company they proceeded together toward home, the man following and appearing unconcerned about them, and not at all drunk. When near the top of the hill Pritched overtook them, and seizing the McShane girl he threw her down in the road; the girl screamed and struggled with the big brute, (he is a very large, powerful scoundrel) while one of the other children ran screaming to Mr. Gurnee's house, and the other down the hill to a house where Dr. George C. Smith was just getting in his wagon after visiting a patient. The doctor inquired what was the matter, and was told "a man had grabbed a little girl and thrown her in the road and was hurting her." Taking his informant in the wagon the doctor put his horse into a keen run and was soon at the scene of the struggle, but both the man and girl had disappeared. Some of Mr. Gurnee's family were on the ground, and a search was instituted, which resulted in the doctor finding the man on the bank at the roadside, hid in the bushes, lying face downward and apparently very drunk. The doctor rushed Pritched into the road very unceremoniously, and staggering against the railing the villain, in what was meant to be, a stupidly drunken manner, inquired, "what's the row?" and was told he would learn if he didn't already know. The anxiety for the little girl drew the attention of the people from the man, of which he took advantage and went off. The girl by struggling and screaming, and the alarms given by her two companions, caused the fiend to desist, and she ran home, informing her parents of the circumstance. Many of the details of the condition in which the man was when discovered in the bushes will not bear publication. The struggle must have been a severe one, as both man and girl were literally covered with dirt, and all traces of wagon tracks in the road where it occurred were obliterated.

Pritched was arrested about 3 a. m. on Monday morning and lodged in jail, from whence he was taken to Geary's hotel in East Kingston, where an investigation of the case was held at 9 a. m. before Justice Brink.

This same man Pritched about a year since pursued a little girl, it was thought at the time, with the intention of rape; but she escaped him, and as no positive proof could be brought against him the matter was allowed to drop.

On the examination the charge found against Pritched was "assault and battery with attempt to commit rape," and he was remanded to jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

After a Suit.

A frisky steer came down North Front street Monday, and stopped at a clothing store. Being of an inquiring turn of mind, he put his head in the door to speak to the proprietor. The proprietor didn't relish the familiarity, and made sundry demonstrations that so surprised the steer he hastily backed out, and into one of the show windows. Then the bovine galloped off. Now the proprietor of that store would like to know who owns that steer!—"py tam!"

The Midland people are rapidly extending their second wire.

AN EXPLANATION BY THE PRESIDENT.

NEW YORK, July 27, 1872.

A telegram this morning, apparently to the Associated Press, calls in question the value of the first mortgage bonds of the Rondout & Oswego Railroad, and states that the Company has failed to meet its interests.

I have given public notice, as widely as possible, of the payment of the July coupons at the office of the New York, Kingston & Syracuse Railroad Company, No. 18 William street, New York, where the same have been paid in gold, and I invite all persons having any doubt on the subject to apply at that address, with any coupons or vouchers, for interest, they may hold.

The suit on which this telegram and false statement are founded rests on the disputed ownership of some bonds.

The coupons of last January of those bonds were refused payment on the ground that the company had not parted with their possession or ownership, and this was under a different board and management. Under the present board and management the company has met all its liabilities and largely reduced them, and has increased its receipts and property, and will about the first of September throw open to the public fourteen additional miles of road, fully equipped, thereby reaching the important town of Stamford, seventy-five miles from the Hudson River. Your obedient servant,

GEORGE H. SHARPE, President.

Tows.

Tanners and Curriers' Balls.

The Wawarsing people who live at The Corners enjoy themselves in grand balls or frolics in the grove on the banks of the creek. These dances are called Tanners and Curriers' balls, and are jovial, happy gatherings.

Apt Name.

There is a saloon in Ellenville that has a most novel though no doubt appropriate sign, as follows:—"Bier & Oyster Saloon." There is also an undertaker's shop next door, where a hearse can be had on reasonable terms. This is handy for customers.

Overlook.

The Overlook Mountain House was crowded with guests last week, there being over 250 on the books in one day. Mr. Lasher has had a present of two young Shandaken bears.—They are named Tom and Jessie, being the names of the donors, and are the wonder and delight of the guests.

This Cut illustrates the manner of Using DR. PIERCE'S Fountain Nasal Injector, OR DOUCHE.

This instrument is especially designed for the perfect application of

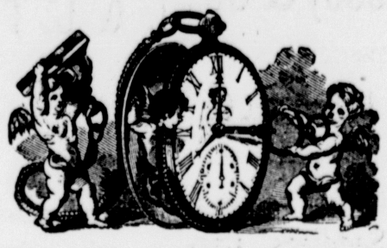

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY

It is the only form of instrument yet invented with which fluid medicine can be carried high up and perfectly applied to all parts of the affected nasal passages, and the chambers or cavities communicating therewith, in which sores and ulcers frequently exist, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. The want of success in treating Catarrh heretofore has arisen largely from the impossibility of applying remedies to these cavities and chambers by any of the ordinary methods. This obstacle in the way of effecting cures is entirely overcome by the invention of the Douche. In using this instrument, the Fluid is carried by its own weight, (no snuffing, forcing or pumping being required,) up one nostril in a full gently flowing stream to the highest portion of the nasal passages, passes into and thoroughly cleanses all the tubes and chambers connected therewith, and flows out of the opposite nostril. Its use is pleasant, and so simple that a child can understand it. Full and explicit directions accompany each instrument. When used with this instrument, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures recent attacks of "Cold in the Head" by a few applications.

Symptoms of Catarrh. Frequent headache, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, thick mucus, purulent, offensive, &c. In others a dryness, dry, watery, weak or inflamed eyes, stopping up or obstruction of nasal passages, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired or total deprivation of sense of smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, loss of appetite, indigestion, enlarged tonsils, tickling cough, &c. Only a few of these symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, when used with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, and accompanied with the constitutional treatment which is recommended in the pamphlet that wraps each bottle of the Remedy, is a perfect specific for this loathsome disease, and the proprietor offers, in good faith, $500 reward for a case he can not cure. The Remedy is mild and pleasant to use, containing no strong or caustic drugs or poisons. The Catarrh Remedy is sold at 50 cents. Douche at 60 cents. By all Druggists, or either will be mailed by proprietor on receipt of 60 cents. R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Sole Proprietor, BUFFALO, N. Y.

LOOK AT THE FIGURES!

183,600 Machines per annum.

Many new machine companies have had their rise and fall—their machines once popular now scarcely known—others have made radical changes in order to exist; while the Howe Machine Company have adhered to the opinion of "Elias Howe, Master of Mechanics" ("The machine is mechanically correct; does not change"), built addition after addition to their factory, and to-day cannot supply the demand, although turning out six hundred machines a day—just a machine a minute.

THE GREAT PRIZE:
EXPOSITION UNIVERSELLE,

Awarded over eighty-two competitors

The Highest Premium,

THE ONLY CROSS OF THE LEGION OF HONOR AND GOLD MEDAL,

Given to American Sewing Machines, per Imperial Decree, published in the "Moniteur Universel" (Official Journal of the French Empire,) Tuesday, 21 July, 1867, in these words:

ELIAS HOWE, JR. { Fabricante de Machines a coudre exposant. Manufacturer of Sewing Machines, Exhibitor.

The Howe Sewing Machines

Are celebrated and known for doing the best work, using a straight and much smaller needle for the same thread than any other machine. They are adapted to any and all kinds of family sewing and manufacturing of every description, (from fine lace to patent leather,) making a beautiful and perfect Lock Stich, alike on both sides of the article sewed, and will neither rip nor ravel, and uses less thread.

Every machine is as near perfection as the best machinery in the world can make it. It is the oldest machine and has more improvements, and is nearer perfection than any other machine, the parts being exactly alike. If any of the parts need to be replaced, the operator can replace it, and it will outlast and outwear any machine made. They are remarkably simple and easily learned, sure in their operation, and almost impossible to break or get them out of order. They use any thread directly from the spool. The needle has a perpendicular motion, (absolutely necessary for heavy work,) runs easily, a fast sewer, and almost noiseless. They do not soil the dress of the operator, and do not have to be taken apart to oil and clean. The New Improved Family Machine cannot be surpassed and is without equal, and we CHALLENGE THE WORLD to produce a better machine on points of merit. A Hemmer, Feller, Gatherer, Braider, Quilter, Tucking Guide, and all the other necessary Tools go with each machine, free of charge.

☞ Beware of spurious and bogus Howe's. The undersigned is the only authorized Agent for the Genuine Howe Machine.
